STANDARDS FOR DEVELOPMENT AND PERMISSION FOR USE

TLCPCP welcomes and encourages participation in our community by all who are interested in person centered practices including all strands, styles and approaches. The following criteria apply only to curricula developed by TLCPCP within the operating structure of our community.

TLCPCP is a collaborative community that invites and welcomes participation from anyone that has an interest in person centered practices and a willingness to collaborate and share learning. Our purpose is to connect and organize people who seek to gain and maintain positive control over lives they have chosen for themselves with friends, family, supporters and other allies, many of whom work in the systems that are charged with funding and providing support. We share a vision that all people find connection and belonging and have purpose and meaning in an inclusive world that we all share. We support the use of person centered practices as a means to move toward that vision.

TLCPCP welcomes and values all strands and styles of person centered thinking, planning and other approaches our learning and practice. Through volunteer participants, we create and set the standards for use of specific curricula that we develop and deliver via credentialed trainers. We work to strike a balance between sharing our learning generously and ensuring the fidelity of its use, especially within system that often diminish the impact and effectiveness and reputation of person centered practice due to misuse and conflicts of interest.

TLCPCP does not itself provide training and does not profit from training events that are delivered by credentialed trainers in our network who use our materials with permission. Our sole purpose is to serve as a hub of learning and connection. Part of that is to support a network of trainers and others that contribute to specific curricula that are co-created within the mechanisms that we have developed.
